Tuarus was kind to provide us with a badges checklist. It's an Excel spreadsheet, which prompted me to add a new component to the site - a file repository, that makes it so much easier to add and host files.

All users registered on the main site and at Author level or above should be able to upload files into the repository. They will not be available until Someone With Power reviews and authorizes the files - a little precaution to keep the files in order.

While I was at it, I also installed a small add-on that makes it possible to add a link to an item in the repository in an article.

Anyway, here's the checklist:
